THE BLUE AND WHITE

We, the classes of 1938½ and 1939, wish to express our appreciation of

Clara A. Snell

It is not only for her ability as a teacher and for her endless patience with us in our attempts to master the science of mathematics that we honor her, but also for herself — for her keen sense of humor and her enthusiastic participation and interest in student affairs.

Miss Snell, a graduate of Bates College, came to us in 1918 from Melrose High School. She early became interested in student affairs here. Since its establishment in 1923 Miss Snell has been the faculty adviser of our Student Government. She is also a member of the Student Treasury Advisory Board, and for years has assisted Mrs. Buzzell with the management of the Welfare Board. For more than ten consecutive years Miss Snell was the adviser of the senior classes. It was no easy job to become well enough acquainted with the pupils of every new graduating class to help them personally, but Miss Snell has a great capacity for making friends among the students, and she has always had their respect and admiration.

We are deeply grateful to Miss Snell for her sincere interest and great faith in us. It is therefore with affection that we dedicate to her this issue of the BLUE and WHITE.

The History of the Class of 1938¹

Although this is the history of the class of '38¹ it concerns principally the deferred class of '38 and '38¹. Only twenty two pupils from the original '38¹ class are graduating in February.

The Freshman Class did not choose its class officers until the early part of June, 1936. Do you remember at our Freshman Dance when John Welch stumped for his sister Margaret, and she spoke for him? John was elected President and Margaret, Member-at-Large. It was the school's misfortune at this time to have Mr. Kiley and Mr. Oliver transferred to Technical High School, the former as Assistant Principal, and the latter, as Chemistry Teacher. However we felt extremely fortunate in having Mr. S. Everett Cook come to us at that time from the main office to become our Assistant Principal. Mr. Ressler and Miss Maney also left, but returned, much to our good fortune, the next year. Upon their return, Mr. Baker left to teach at Van Sickle Junior High School; we hope that he, too, will soon return. It was a great day when Mr. Lanckton arrived fresh from teaching in Turkey. A year later he left us to work for the Socony Co. Was it because he disliked Classical or because he liked his position better in Turkey?

In our Junior year, Margaret Welch succeeded her brother as President. The beginning of 1937 saw the abandonment of the mid-year graduation and also was the last year that Mr. Don Gifford instructed Classical players in Soccer, Hockey, and Track for he was made Assistant Principal of Central Street Junior High School. It was also in this year that the "blushing

John Pagliaro was on the relay team that defeated Massachusetts State College by beating their record. Our class team was undefeated that year.

In our Senior Year, our class officers were:

President	VERNA FIERER
Vice-President	MARY PHILLIPS
Treasurer	RICHARD CUMMINGS
Secretary	BARBARA DWYER
Member-at-Large	EMMA CARLSON

Due to the changing enrollment in our class, its activities have been rather limited; nevertheless there are many students who have made themselves a place in this school history. Donald Zink has striven in the Student Government for three years to build up the splendid traffic squad and system that we now have. What will the girls' traffic squad do without Chief Lilli "Susan B. Anthony" Dugas who always did her job to the best of her ability? How will the Recorder survive in future editions without Manager Richard Cummings whose outstanding work, during his three years of leadership, has kept the Recorder at a high standard?

A review of the class activities would not be complete without mentioning "Maestro" Gordon Avery. Gordon claims that he has an orchestra. Is it as good as he says, or is it one of those "every man for himself" affairs? We shall find out about it for ourselves at the Senior Banquet, but up until that night, we remember him better for his outstanding abilities as a basketball and baseball player. "Sy" Perlowitz is a close rival to Avery in audibility; his loquacity leads him into difficulties as he discovered in his English Class:

TEACHER: Simon, what are Lucifer Matches?

SY: I guess they are loose matches.

At the beginning of the 12A semester we lost one well-liked member of our class, Constance Hubbard. Due to illness, she has been unable to take part in our class activities, but we are all hoping that she will be able to finish her senior year with those graduating in June, 1939.

In writing this history, it would be a great catastrophe, if Bob Scott's name were omitted. What will Miss Clark and the future Glee Clubs do without Bob's "dependability", especially in view of the proposed appearance of the Glee Club at the World's Fair in June. As seniors we were well represented in the Glee Club and Orchestra:

LILI DUGAS	ALICE DRISCOLL
JUSTUS MINER	ROBERT SCOTT
JANE KING	DONALD DICKINSON
GORDON AVERY	RICHARD CUMMINGS

They probably all feel right now that they were born six months too soon, for who wouldn't like to attend the World's Fair, especially to perform as representatives of Springfield and Classical High School?

History Committeemen:

JUSTUS MINER, Chairman
ALICE DRISCOLL
RICHARD CUMMINGS
ROBERT SCOTT

strong man", Habel, and "sleepy" Al Hitchins received their first attention on the football team for their good playing. During the fall of '37 and '38 Eddy Poole's abilities on the football team helped to put Classical in its high position. Avery's exceptional playing in basketball and baseball during his freshman and junior years has not been equalled by any other Classicalite. Classical was the only school in the city during the spring of '36, '37, and '38 that had a track team. In '36 and '37 Justus Miner was shotputter and discus thrower for the team. In '38 Hitchins took over Miner's position. It was a bad day for the team when Henry Cottle, classmate, had to leave school, but his outstanding record was, however, upheld by the team.

The Will of the Class of 1938 $\frac{1}{2}$

1. To Mr. Hill, our principal, we, the class of 1938 $\frac{1}{2}$ bequeath our sincere appreciation and our warmest gratitude for the advice and counsel extended to us during our three happy years at Classical High.

2. To our faculty advisors Miss Roy and Miss Gammons we leave our thanks for the time and effort they put forth to enable our undertakings to be successful.

3. To the 12B class we leave our assembly seats. May they absorb the dignity and sophistication that lingers there.

4. Ruth Kantor and Rosa Shour leave their joint bottle of peroxide to Carol King.

5. Marion Lynch leaves her display of leg anatomy to Henrietta Moran.

6. Jane King leaves her golden soprano voice to the undergraduates so they too can climb to higher scales.

7. Charlotte Harsh leaves her badly worn mirror to anyone who can stand it.

8. Alice Driscoll leaves her coquettish charms to Mary Meony in hopes she will focus them successfully on some unsuspecting freshman.

9. Donald Dickinson leaves his blush to anyone unfortunate enough to be at the receiving end of Miss Clark's insinuating jests.

10. Dick Ehrlich leaves his bass pipes to Gertrude Dineen in hopes she will play a lower tune.

11. Bernadette Hunt leaves her "gift of gab" to anyone with a nose for gossip.

12. Gordon Avery leaves his ability to trumpet, to some other tall, dark, and musical man.

13. Joanne Sadowski leaves her petite figure to Helen Higgins.

14. John Pagliaro leaves his appeal to Tyrone Power.

15. Henrietta Asher, Bernice Greenberg, and Edythe Wasserman leave their lasting friendship to three other musketeers.

16. Simon Perlowitz leaves his hard earned knowledge of English, in a nutshell, to be used as a paper weight on Miss Anthony's desk.

17. Wilson Dougherty leaves the Classical High School much happier.

18. "Small in stature, but who can match her". Mary Richardson, a tiny bit of femininity, leaves her tall hopes for a big year to all female undergraduates.

19. Barbara Dwyer leaves her call of "Fire-fire" to Mr. Lawlor.

20. Mike Pino leaves his inability to get along with teachers to Ray Tuller, who has already started a record for himself.

21. Evelyn Muscolino leaves her concentrated study to Roger Scibelli.

22. Eunice Hamann leaves her witty personality and grand sense of humor to Doris Johnson.

23. Dot Sullivan, the human vacuum cleaner, leaves her scrap items to anyone who can collect them as thoroughly.

24. Mary Phillips leaves her dusky beauty in the lineup as a rival to Hedy La Marr.

25. Elizabeth Johnson leaves her winning smile to unfortunates who never scored in the game.

26. Emma Carlson leaves her Swedish candy recipes to sweeten Classical's soured dispositions.

27. Betty Dunlea, Ruth-Mary Hutchings and Connie Bigelow leave their shyness to the baby mice in 305.

28. George Moore wishes to leave his decaying old corn-cob smoke stack [otherwise known as a pipe] to John Foley, in hopes that his dreams will not go up in smoke and leave a bitter taste in his mouth.

29. Marion Manson leaves to all flunking students her well-worn Latin book. May their worried marks be erased by earnest efforts—and Miss Kingsley.

30. To Bernadette Roach, Joyce Lunden leaves her sweetness, sincerity, and academic standards. May she use them to her best advantage. We're expecting things "Bernie"!

31. Our Class artist, Stanley Kaufman, leaves his wit, coupled with artistic ability, to flunking students, in order that they may paint a rosier picture when report cards draw a sad conclusion.

32. Jane Rathbun leaves her "flair" for swing skirts to some "tight" freshman who hasn't "loosened" up yet.

33. Donald Zink leaves a lot of work to the Union Carpenters who will be repairing many broken hearts after he leaves.

34. Dottie Hickey, leaves her sophisticated walk to Lorraine Hornish who can use extra dignity.

35. Lilli Dugas leaves her many extra curricular activities to any undergraduate who can keep up with her pace and still run a winning race.

36. Verna Fierer leaves her brilliant executive powers to any underclass girl who thinks she can fill her shoes.

37. Barbara Kennedy leaves her secretarial position to any young aspirant who should like to become the right hand helper to Classical's first class history teacher, Mr. Brown.

38. Al Hitchins, Bill Habel, and Ed Poole leave their respective positions of tackle, guard, and end to prospective young All-Americans.

39. "Jitterbug" Bob Scott leaves his thick curly locks to Ed Smith.

40. Justice Miner, Miss Clark's helper, leaves his ability to slave to one of his followers.

41. Dick Cummings contributes his bit by reminding all plump undergraduates that streamline figures weren't made in a day.

In testimony whereof we, the class of 1938 $\frac{1}{2}$, being of sound body and mind, have set our hand and seal unto this, our last will and testament, written in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, at the Classical High School.

THE GOOD SHIP 1938½

The Prophecy of the Class of 1938 $\frac{1}{2}$

Come all you children who have been left behind and we will take you on our trip to Mars. We enter the gate in the Depression year 1933 and are greeted triumphantly by the Martians who immediately ask if we would like to take a tour to gaze upon the happenings of our own world.

Traveling slowly so as to see all, we pass over many remote spots. The most interesting, as we peer about, seems to be a fair in St. Louis. Bands are playing and men are shouting but this does not disturb our visit.

Deciding this to be our first stop, we are set down by our hosts. Entering the large spacious gates we view classmate, Jane Rathbun. After the usual salutation she tells of her training and finally filling this position. Jane also says that she would like us to see someone else who might remember us. Pressing a button, a familiar blond woman enters; she proves to be Dorothy Sullivan who has entered the Center and worked with Jane since leaving 113. Seeing that they are both busy, we say good-bye and start out again.

Our peaceful walk is soon interrupted by a young man rushing by; closer vision discloses him to be Dick Ehrlich. He inquires about our trip and asks us to accompany him to his office to file a story. He informs us that the multi-millionaire Justus Miner and his wife, the former Evelyn Muscalino had brought their child to the Fair with them without its nurse. In the bustling crowd she had been lost and they feared kidnapers. We near a building with the sign "World's Fair Gazette" staring us in the eye. Entering we find many familiar faces: Dick Cummings, Charlotte several administration buildings constructed in the latest fashion; none of these are of particular interest to us and we pass along. Suddenly a sign catches our gaze: "The Medical Center", and below are the names of the Center's doctor and his assistant. This is what we wonder at. We enter, inquire about the doctor and are ushered into a spacious office. At a desk sits an extremely neat and attractive young woman who rises as we enter. As we have suspected, it is our Harsh, Betty Dunlea, Barbara Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Miner. The editor, Mr. Cummings, had already heard of the affair from the prostrated parents and had sent Charlotte, Betty Dunlea, and Barbara in search of the child. They have, as we are told, one of the finest lost children bureaus in the country. After they had brought her back to her anxious parents, we sit and talk of the many happy moments spent in 113. Soon we have started in search of something quiet after this upset.

As we walk along, the strains of a lovely aria meet our ears. We enter the building from which they issue.

Before our eyes is a large hall and at the farther end a stage on which an orchestra plays. With its melody can be heard a beautiful soprano voice. A woman approaches us questioning if she might be of assistance. To our surprise it is Verna Fierer; she informs us that the American Federation of Women's Clubs, of which she is President, is sponsoring the musicale. Talking on, we find the singer to be the celebrated Alice Driscoll. Listening to the performance we are attracted by the unruly hair of the conductor and find it to be the Maestro, Simon Perlowitz. After listening a while we bid them good-bye and depart to find other interests. We spot a great, interesting looking building; entering, we find displays of food stuffs of all sorts. In one section we see a tall blond girl demonstrating canned goods. We stare and find it to be none other than Lilli Dugas. We talk of the past and she relates that there are others in this industry who formerly roomed with us. Among them are Henrietta Ascher, Edyth Wasserman, and Bernice Greenberg, displaying the work of 4H girls all over the country. Behind them is a display of beautiful, luscious looking fruits and vegetables. We inquire about the exhibit and are told that they are specimens of Donald Dickinson, the famous gentleman farmer, noted for the fruits and vegetables he raises.

OUR HERO

We take leave of these friends and start out again. Next we approach a distinctive dress center. Entering we find a model's runway, and in front of this a large group of spectators. A young woman comes bustling towards us. It proves to be Marian Manson, a style authority, going on the air to describe the clothes worn by the models. We make our way back stage and bump into Marian Lynch and Joyce Lunden, the dress designers; they are putting on this performance. They tell us that Dorothy Hickey and Rosa Shour are the models.

After leaving them, we feel the pangs of hunger and peer around for a desirable place to dine. Seeing an inviting place we enter. There we are met by the ever-charming host, Bob Scott, owner of a long chain of restaurants and night clubs. He invites us to dine. When the hostess approaches, we discover it to be Mary Richardson, Bob's assistant, and her charming personality makes her a fine one. When we have eaten, Bob ushers us into the kitchen to have us meet Bernadette Hunt, his chief dietitian. Going out into the noise of the grounds again, we hear the roar of one of the newest super-deluxe cars, 1953. It stopped in front of us, and we are hailed by one of its passengers. Approaching, we find Edward Poole, Bill Habel, Emma Carlson. In the course of the conversation we learn that Ed has become a crack salesman. At this time he is demonstrating it to Bill, president of the World's Fair, and Emma, his secretary. We get in and drive down to the Athletic Field where Bill says he has a friend of ours in tow. It is none other than Al Hitchins, all toggled out in the latest football paraphernalia. He has turned pro after college and is now an athletic instructor. He hails a passer-by, Wilson Dougherty, the weight-lifter, who is on his way to practise for his coming contest. They are busy, so we depart. The next spot of interest seems to be a structure on our right where strains of music meet our approval. We enter and find a band rehearsing. The leader is none other than Gordon Avery. This is a joyful reunion and we recall his playing at school. His vocalist is Mary Phillips who sings us the latest song. We leave the room and walk along the hall. Through the open door can be heard the voice of a man talking so fast that it sounds like a machine. We discover George Moore. He is practising for his radio broadcast and is reputed to be the fastest talker in the radio business. But George was always a master at perpetual motion. He tells us to go on farther and meet another friend of ours. In a spacious room, Stanley Kaufman is diligently painting Jeanne Sadowski, his model. His life work now is painting magazine illustrations and he asks if we would like to wait for the renowned sculptor, Michael Pino, who is to visit him later in the day. He is, with the help of Stan, working on a life-sized statue of the author, Eunice Hamann, famous for her book, "All Our Glory". Deciding not to wait, we make for our ship. En route we meet Ruth Kantor escorted by John Pagliaro. Ruth is now lecturing on World Peace. Through them we hear of many others who have won esteem: Ruth-Mary Hutchings, Constance Bigelow and Elizabeth Johnson, all famed in the world of education, Elizabeth, dean of a women's college and Constance and Ruth-Mary co-workers in the field of child care.

HONOR ROLL — 1939

Those who received Summa Cum Laude have made an average equal to the average a pupil would attain if he was on the first group honor roll each marking period for three years. Similarly, Magna Cum Laude is equivalent to being on the second group honor roll each marking period, and Cum Laude is equivalent to being on the third group honor roll each marking period. A person need not be on the honor roll each marking period to get on the Three Year Honor Roll. It is the average that counts. For example; a person getting two A's, a B, and a C has the same average as a person on the third group honor roll with one A and three B's.

Climbing back into comfortable seats we rest our weary feet and fall asleep contented with a full day of accomplishments.

Respectfully submitted,

The History of the Class of 1939

FRESHMAN YEAR

Listen, my friends, we want you to hear
Of our days at Classical, busy and dear.
In the year '36 our work was begun,
Which culminates in these days of fun.
Our first day in school in early September
Is something I'm sure we'll all remember;
When wise-cracking seniors, one and all
Made us of '39 feel incomparably small.
When long after the ringing of every bell
Still in the corridors we scurried pell-mell,
When first we learned the price of misbehavior,
Something from which no charm can save yer;
The price, too, of not paying attention,
You know it as well as I—detention;
When after experience in 105,
[We were the culprits who kept it alive]
When, too, we first learned to rush thru a meal,
And how a stomach, mistreated, can feel;
When first we were taught by our faculty
To sum up in the words of Miss Anthony,
[Whom we found very helpful and not a bit lax—]
..... "What more could we ax?"
Officers, too, it was time to elect;
These are the ones the class did select—
Bob Peirce and Chet Prentice headed the list;
C. Van Sickle, Jack Westberg were picked to assist.
Brown, orange, and tan our colors held high
For which we were pledged "to do or to die".
Thus began Eddie Goss' napping,
Mickey Nielson's brand of flapping,
Isabelle Brock's studiousness,
Cliff Seaver's athletic success,
Harry Ellis' popularity,
Helen Harper's joviality,
Dave Weber's clarinet,
Mitchell Sullivan—teacher's pet,
Perry Swirsky in swell jam sessions,
Joe Manazer's "True Confessions",
Phoebe Blunt's beginning to knit,
Paul Travers' displaying his wit.
So in work and pleasures gay,
Our days as freshmen passed away.

JUNIOR YEAR

Now as juniors, our confidence more secure,
We returned from vacation more knowledge to procure.
Officers Bob Peirce and Chet Prentice headed the list,
With Carolyn Van Sickle and Roy Atherton to assist.
Miss McKoan, the girls' gym teacher so dear,

Became Mrs. Dayton in our junior year.
By musical work very well done,
Miss Clark, for Classical, new laurels won.
And other feats of wondrous skill
We accomplished with brain and will.
Our promenade passed as great events do,
As our junior year to its finish drew.

SENIOR YEAR

Our senior year began last September
It's been a year we'll always remember.
Soon president Peirce an election did call
To see who would represent us all.
The class elected, with great content,
Atherton, Roberts, Munder, and Peirce, as president.
Till twelve o'clock at our senior hop
We danced till we were ready to drop.
And we'll never forget Mrs. Buzzell,
Who certainly helped us very well.
And in athletics we took our place
That Classical High might keep its pace.
For Welch, and Seaver and Tuller a ditty,
'Cause these were our boys who made All-City.
Welch, the captain of our football team,
Turned out to be a coach's dream.
Bob Perry, our gum-chewing mentor so slim—
There's no one in Classical that doesn't like him.
For our coach departing—Curley Relyea,
We give three cheers, "Hip, hip, hooray!"
How quickly these three years have passed!
But always memories of them will last.
We shall never forget the fun we had
In English, a new Shakespearian fad:
Johnny Roberts, the messenger so debonair,
And Muriel Lanckton, the queen so fair;
Ed Smith, who, as Hamlet, stole every scene,
And C. Labrovitz as a ruthless fiend.
To our advisors, Mrs. Brown and Mr. Phelps,
Our thanks we give for judgment and helps.
So, as we end our high-school career,
For our class and our school, let's give a cheer.
One for the faculty, loud, and with will,
And a locomotive for Mr. Hill,
For past achievements are only a test,
And for Classical's credit we'll never rest.

The Will of the Class of 1939

We, the class of 1939, considering ourselves quite sound physically and mentally, having suffered the trials and tribulations of freshmen, the enlightenment offered to juniors, and the heart-and-pocketbook-rendering experiences as seniors, do hereby relieve ourselves of excess talents or possessions and state our bequeathal in this, our last will and testament.

ARTICLE I. We appoint no executors to this will, as we think it only just that if something is to be executed it be us.

ARTICLE II. To Mr. Hill we leave that vague and undefinable "it", which denotes an unshakable faith in his ability to guide and advise all Classicalites, and to impress upon their youthful minds the immortal words of Immanuel Kant.

ARTICLE III. To all future class presidents, we leave memories of gallant Bob Peirce as a warning.

ARTICLE IV. Bob Gordon leaves the cherubic epidermis to prove that he "must've been a beautiful baby".

ARTICLE V. To whatever freshie wants to have a darned good time and get away with it, Mike Sullivan wills his sweet, innocent face and his antithetical character.

ARTICLE VI. Ray Tuller [you know Ray] leaves his ability to get along with teachers to Mike Vatousiou. Ray also leaves his sweaters to all future physicists.

ARTICLE VII. We leave a generous group of heavenly bodies to invade Mr. Phelps' future astronomy classes.

ARTICLE VIII. Eddie Bloese wills his Li'l Abner profile to whoever can furnish the dialect—and the suitcases for the lower extremities—to complete the part.

ARTICLE IX. Faith Harvey leaves her accent to some gentleman in need of an alibi.

ARTICLE X. Inez Brown leaves the piano keys and a few strings to some person who, we think, can never fill her shoes but who can try.

ARTICLE XI. Howie Welch leaves his barrel legs for anyone who thinks he can step into "Speed's" cleats.

ARTICLE XII. To a freshman who dreams of a sky-writing career, Marjorie Aldrich wills her admirable penmanship.

ARTICLE XIII. To the next group of map-making freshies, Jane Gulman leaves her knowledge that the world is neither round nor flat, but crooked.

ARTICLE XIV. Jack Garvin leaves his ardent method of courting to Zanetti, who hardly needs it; but one can always learn new tricks, can't one?

ARTICLE XV. Our beloved Pris Crosby leaves an aching void, painfully reminiscent of that last trip to the dentist's, in the hearts of some of the boys she leaves behind her.

ARTICLE XVI. To Ed Smith, Corinne Prouty leaves some of her plentiful overhead.

ARTICLE XVII. Dorothy Lovejoy leaves her telephone number to some undergraduate, but be careful because her heart belongs to Daddy.

ARTICLE XVIII. With a sigh of relief, Gert Dineen wills her amazing ability to collect germs to someone who loves apples.

ARTICLE XIX. Elliot Siegel leaves a bristly 5 o'clock shadow to Mr. Baker, who might rather have a pretzel straightener to untangle him from the knots he ties himself into.

ARTICLE XX. Joe Manazer leaves his honest and irresistible countenance to some future Fuller Brush man, in the hope that thus no Classical student may ever get a sore toe.

ARTICLE XXI. Rollin Baldwin generously leaves his echoes to be picked up by some promising member of the Glee Club—Whalen?

ARTICLE XXII. "Fumble recoverer" Saab leaves the glory of that fumble to inspire all future substitute ends.

ARTICLE XXIII. Stanley Weiss wills his talent for writing poetry to whoever finds and returns the missing screw.

ARTICLE XXIV. Norman Judd has finally consented to leave his brief-case to the Smithsonian Institute.

ARTICLE XXV. Thelma Packard leaves her fascination for Mr. Hess to another real blonde.

ARTICLE XXVI. Willy Gilman wills [euphony plus!] dat charmin' poisonality to whoever else cultivates enemies on the principle that they're less expensive than friends.

ARTICLE XXVII. To Room 301 the German Club members leave the haunting scent of lindburgher and onions.

ARTICLE XXVIII. Jerry Clough wills a biography of himself to any Classical entomologist who cares to write it.

ARTICLE XXIX. To Mr. Curtis we leave exclusive right to the words "if you please", provided he continues to use them in such hair-raising sentences as "And enter—the Ghost, if you please!"

ARTICLE XXX. Sid Bauld leaves his winged feet to Mr. Brown so he can overtake loiterers in the corridors after 8:25.

ARTICLE XXXI. To the bald-headed Man in the Moon, Gloria Beaudry sympathetically leaves her golden curls.

ARTICLE XXXII. Ginny Allen, Nancy Ameluxen, and Peggy Anderson leave the gift of gab to any Tom, Dick, or Harriet with muscular mandibles.

ARTICLE XXXIII. Deane Churchill and Faith Harvey leave—together.

ARTICLE XXXIV. John Westberg, John Roberts, and Winifred Kling leave the Student Government.

In testimony whereof, we hereby set our hands to this, our last will, written upon these three sheets of paper, this fourteenth day of June, 1939.

Signed:

CLASS OF 1939.

Signed, published, and declared by the above named class, in accordance with the laws and regulations of the school, we offer this, their last will and testament, to the undergraduates to be handled with as much discretion as they see fit, and do now, at their request, subscribe our names as witnesses.

The Prophecy of the Class of 1939

AN EVENING SPENT IN GRAVE CONTEMPLATION OR AN EVENING AT THE CRYPTS

Note: Any reference herein to actual persons, either living or dead, is purely intentional.

Out of three graves so newly made that there were as yet no markers above them sprang three ghosts. Slowly they scratched their heads, rubbed their eyes, and gazed at one another in amazement. "What happened?" asked one ghost in a voice which, although hollow with death, was still unmistakably that of Bob Calhoun.

"Why, don't you remember?" asked another ghost, who was easily distinguishable as Bill Orr by the neatness of his shroud. "We were the victims of that Wheeler Whizzer-8 rocket crash the other day. I warned Joe Martin not to bank so sharply around clouds, but he would have his own way."

"Yes," moaned the third ghost, Bernard Harrington, "and it was so important for me to get to Denver, that one-hearse town, to lecture before the western branch of the Benjamin Franklin Historical Society. But look at me now! A few days ago I was a little over six feet, and now I'm definitely six feet under!"

"Do you realize," said Orr, "that we were the sole surviving members of the class of '39 at Classical? Perhaps we'll see all our classmates again."

"But we haven't seen anything yet," cried Calhoun, "no pearly gates or flames or red-hot pitchforks or anything—nothing but this old cemetery in which they buried us!"

"You will!" came a ghastly hiss from among the tombstones. The three started and looked around. "What in cremation is that?" cried Harrington.

Suddenly, from between two marble angels, Ephraim Radner, wearing a badge and a policeman's uniform, emerged and stood at attention as a ghostly figure strode past.

"Cheese it, the corpse!" shrieked Orr, rushing toward his grave. The effort, however, was too much for him, and he sank to the ground.

"Be careful there," cautioned Harrington. "At 117 you can't go dashing around like a schoolboy, you know, even though you were an Olympic star once. I'm going to advance bravely and say 'how do you do' to the nice ghost."

Calhoun looked at his bony skeleton, carefully draped in its new cerements and said scornfully, "You haven't the guts!"

"I'm amazed at your cowardice on this monumental occasion," replied Harrington, and he tottered with dignity toward the spectre.

"H-h-how d-do you d-do!" Harrington quavered. "I hope you're well."

"I'm in great spirits tonight, thank you," replied the figure, "but can it be that you don't recognize me?"

Harrington shook his head doubtfully, then exclaimed with joy, "Why, yes, you're Robert Peirce, our old class president!"

"Right you are," said Peirce, beaming with pleasure. "Before my death, I was a minister, you know. My First Baptist Church on 42nd Street was always packed, except when Perry Swirsky and his orchestra played next door. At present, however, I conduct the vesper services Over There and Rolly Baldwin leads the choir boys. Inez Brown is still accompanying on her harpsicorpse. My, you have no idea what a gorgeous soprano [voice] good old Howie Welch has acquired since his rejuvenation."

Calhoun, who had approached with Orr, now sighed, "The world has missed old Howie. He did such a wonderful job of coaching at the U."

"It's good to know that Howie went to heaven and not to the other place," said Orr with a shudder.

Peirce turned a fierce glance upon him. "Sir," he said, "there have been no such distinctions here since P.V.J. came into our midst!" Then he smiled benevolently and added, "But draw up a grave, boys, and I'll tell you why I'm here."

When they were seated, he continued, "As soon as we learned that you had given up the ghost, I called a class meeting. As you, the last members of our class, were about to join us, we decided to give you a royal welcome. All your friends are now on their way here from Over There, but it will be some time before everyone has arrived."

"First of all, however," Peirce continued, "you must be rejuvenated. You can't guess what a blessing Westberg's discovery of the process of rejuvenation has been." He then turned and let an eerie shriek ring out through the still of the night.

An answering moan came over the mountain, and presently Westberg himself, clad in a flowered shroud, appeared, holding two gleaming test tubes in his bony hands. As he regarded the others severely through hornrimmed spectacles, he silently nodded three times. At this his assistant, Merrill Becker, stepped forward, bearing an injection needle and profuse bandages. "Now, don't be frightened," said Becker, smiling in his most cheerful bedside manner. "Whatever unpleasant effects there are will wear off in a few hours!"

At this moment, two more assistants, "Muscles" Sweeney and Stan Weiss, appeared with a pile of stretchers. The three initiates were about to flee when Becker stopped them. "Don't worry, boys—those aren't for you. We've just received word from Jerry Clough that he and his cohort of the Foreign Legion, Mike Sullivan, won't be able to get here on their own wings. We've had quite a bit of trouble that way ever since Johnathan re-established his Birnie Beer Breweries up here." And with that Westberg quickly inoculated each at a certain spot between the parietal and the talus bones.

Hereupon a spritely spectre sprinted speedily past, almost stumbling over his long, deep purple shroud. Peirce sighed as he gazed after him. "That's Jack Garvin," he explained. "The poor fellow was broken hearted when he grew old and had to give up track after breaking so many world records. After Westberg rejuvenated him he was so happy he just started running again and hasn't stopped yet."

Then he smiled and whispered confidentially, "Well, well, look who's here!" Up skipped Shirley Cummings, followed by two other hauntingly beautiful maidens, Winnie Kling and Harriet Sturtevant. "Ah!" murmured Orr, "This must be heaven!" Sally Wheat stalked up and Orr sighed gently, "This is heaven!"

"By the way," remarked Calhoun, "whatever became of good old Doc Churchill?" His host grew sorrowful as he replied, "Dean won't be with us today; he has grown so terribly pious that he refuses to leave the church since he found Faith."

A rolling of drums sounded in the distance, and presently a chain gang of ghosts, singing "A-Haunting We Must Go" appeared, led by Tommy "Troubadour" Howarth, Charlie Munder, and Rahilban Odette, with Tom Best, wielding a long, black quip, bringing up the heels. Behind this procession of bodyguards was a magnificent chariot, amply filled by Kervick and Gilman, who were crowned with garlands of flowers. The pair bowed and smiled at the awed gasps of the three newcomers. Gilman condescendingly leaned out of the splendid vehicle to murmur affectionately to the trio, "Welcome, dear friends!" while Kervick added, "And you must visit us very soon in our newly established realm, Two-dopia!"

"Unless P.V.J. gets there first," remarked Peirce in ominous tones. At the mention of these initials, the two dictators stiffened haughtily and swept away in a cloud of dust and a clatter of drums.

Immediately afterwards a group approached, headed by Betty Gil, singing a song vaguely reminiscent of her long operatic career—"Shoot the Liquor to Me, John, Boy!" A bottle appeared followed by Caldwell.

A ghost in a knee-length sheet slithered in and started to speak, as if broadcasting. "A severe case of memory, no doubt," Peirce explained in a whisper as Janet uttered a few preliminary sneezes. "Greetings Gates! Let's disintegrate! This is Janet La Montagne coming to you through the courtesy of Tuller's Hams cooked in the Peerless Piggery in porous pans.

"Flash! Johnny 'Wrong-Door' Roberts was recently named editor of Harper's Bazaar. He will be assisted by the famed fashion designers, Norma Rannenberg and Peggy Anderson.

"Flash! Flash! Phoebe Blunt has just been awarded the Pulitzer Prize in literature for her autobiography, 'I Rot as I Please'.

"Flash! Armand Bengle, captain of the ghost guard cutter 'Nostalgia,' has been presented with a medal of bravery for his rescue of Joseph Mitchell who was vainly attempting to cross the Atlantic in a rowboat.

"Flash! Sinclair Bauld, who brought the Follies Bergeré to Ed Sullivan's New York night club, recently introduced the sensational glamour-glamour-glamour girls Babs Peele, Gratia Kaynor, and Kay O'Mara.

"Flash! Franny Draves, leader of the Ludlow Tennis Racket, has been convicted by Judge John Granfield on evidence compiled and set forth by District Attorney Clara Ellen Bettes.

"And as a parting slash to my rival columnist, Phyllis Reynolds, I say, 'Tsk, tsk! Get thee to a nunnery, go!'"

As Janet noisily faded out, the blast of Bill Hall's trumpet and the clash of Charlotte Kimball's cymbals introduced a mob of excited women headed by Barbara Williams, Helen Tanner, Margaret Welch, Katherine Jacobs and Helen Lasek. At a signal from them the girls shouted, "Tombs with a view, and shorter horrors!" [Ugh!] Ernest San Souci followed the girls, waving banners and his teeth. "My", remarked Orr, "hasn't the labor problem been settled yet?"

"Hello, there!" came a cheery voice from the midst of the crowd, and in a moment plump, jolly Roy Atherton, wearing his trusty reversible, stood before them. "You don't know what a sacrifice I'm making coming here tonight," he said. "My little midnight snack will be all cold by the time I get back. I wanted to tell you, though, that you simply must visit my restaurant Over There. You can't miss it. Just look for the big red letters on the sign. They spell "Ye Olde Gray Mousie Shoppe". And is the food wonderful! Bob Gordon is our cook, and Eddie Bargeon is our (wistful) waiter. But the biggest drawing cards—even more than our special of Little Neck clams with Mushrooms on the side—are the three cute little waitresses Dottie Lovejoy, Marjorie Haase, and 'Bubbles' Gougeon. You should see my two best customers, Chet Prentice, the retired missionary, and J. Archibald Falconer, the former statesman, tumbling over themselves, trying to get waited on first. Well, I must rush back now. I haven't had anything substantial to eat for two hours and I can't mercifully die of starvation up here." —

"We'll try to come," Harrington called after him. "Sounds grand!"

"Sounds grand!" echoed a booming voice. "Are you speaking of Manazer?" And with that the stately, white-haired Joe appeared, a smile on his careworn face.

"Well, Manazer!" the three cried in chorus, "what are you doing here?"

"I, my friends, am devoting eternity to training the voice of that remarkable actress, that Bea Lillie the second—Mickey Nielsen. You remember her, of course, on Broadway. A truly magnificent woman. She was not my only pupil, of course. I trained Norman Judd before he became ambassador to England, and other celebrities, such as George Feltus, the historian, and Dorothy Crouse, the only woman ever to write for 'Esquire'. Yes, I really have a remarkable reputation as a voice teacher. I"

"Step aside, please, step aside!" someone shouted suddenly and Manazer was whisked unceremoniously out of the way to be replaced by a shining white milk wagon driven by Robert Gray, a stunning figure in milk-spattered blue overalls. As Peirce greeted him, he said by way of explanation, "Gray is carrying on up here the same as ever. Bob, old fellow, tell the boys how you won such success in the dairy business."

"Wa'al," drawled Gray, "all I am I owe to udders."

Before he could say another word, Harry "Gertrude Stein" Ellis wandered in, reading bits from his latest masterpiece: "How to Be a Prizefighter in Ten Easy Lessons" or "Drankenstein and Fracula". Without an invitation, he paused by a tombstone and read a few chapters: "Chapter 1: Pro and Con. Chapter 2: A and, of course, B. Chapter 3: Care must be taken, too. Chapter 4: In concluding, allow me to say, quote . . ." But at that point, the hand of George "Tarzan" Houston shot forth from the grave and drew the screaming Harry into its depths.

The purpose of Romani Hodierni, Romans of Today, is to make Latin alive and vital to the modern student, to learn something about the background of Latin and about the lives of those who spoke it. Therefore, the club has learned Latin expressions for conversational use; it conducts its business meetings in Latin; its members have given informal talks about Rome and the Romans, and have presented Latin playlets; the club members have been working on projects of their own choosing. A new, living Latin is the result.

The Youth Hostel Club, organized this year, is the only club of its kind in the United States. Its purpose is to bring together a group of boys and girls in the out-of-doors. Long bicycle trips are taken between the various Youth Hostels in this vicinity. Already several trips have been taken. The one that was taken during the May vacation took the boys and girls as far as New Hampshire.

Captain, HOWIE WELCH

Traveling to Worcester on October 1, to open their schedule with Al Ott's orange clad North High club, the Bulldogs, aided by some able ball toting by Roy Duquette, fashioned an easy 19-0 win. John Shea, Howie Welch, and Roy Duquette tallied the touchdowns in this fray.

A week later the Enfield gridders, under the able direction of Bob Walker, were the Bulldogs guests at Pynchon Park. Roy Duquette ran eighty-five yards with a punt for a score, and Jimmy Falconer hit the center of the Enfield line for fifteen yards and a touchdown, giving Bob Berry's charges their second victory in as many starts, 14-0.

The opening interschool encounter found Classical's Clifton Seaver tallying a touchdown in the second period to edge Technical, 6-0, for the first time in nine years. Mike Saab, Bulldog wingman, recovered a Tiger fumble on the Technician's nineteen-yard stripe. A Seaver to Moylan pass netted a first down on the Tiger's seven. Welch went to the one, from which point Cliff Seaver went over on a quarterback sneak. A record throng of 7,000 witnessed this contest.

Going into the third stanza of the Cathedral game, the Panthers led, 12-0. The Bulldogs, aided by some nifty running by Roy Duquette and some brilliant forward passing by Clifton Seaver, came back strong to gain a 12-12 stalemate. Seaver and Duquette scored the Classical touchdowns.

Jimmy Falconer, Howie Welch, and Roy Duquette scored touchdowns against Harmon Smith's highly touted Agawam club and the Bulldogs gained a 20-0 victory, their fourth of the season.

On November 4 Trade's Beavers nearly threw a monkey wrench into Classical's undefeated record. The Beavers held the Blue and White pigskin array scoreless for three periods, but Howie Welch sliced off-tackle from the one-yard line just as the fourth stanza began, to keep Classical's record unblemished.

Winding up their slate at Pynchon Park a week later the Bulldogs were handed their initial setback, when Chief Meyers' Commerce eleven upset them 18-0. Francis Bonavito, Louis Langone, and Joseph Zieminski, were the Crimson backs who crossed into Classical pay dirt.

Welch, Tuller, Seaver, and Duquette received All-city mention, Welch being chosen captain of the mythical all-star eleven.

Duquette Knocks Down Cathedral Pass

Soccer

Coach., OREN RELYEA

Captains, WILLIAM ORR, THOMAS HOWARTH

In its second year under Coach "Curly" Relyea, the classical soccer team completed a disappointing season. Despite the return of eight major letter men from last year's team, the Blue and White booters won but three games, lost seven, and tied one.

In the local race the team found difficulty getting started, winning three contests and dropping five to wind up in fourth place in the inter-city ratings. The Tech Tiger vanquished the Bulldogs in both meetings by the close scores of 1—0 and 4—1, but a weak Cathedral team was easily turned back twice 5—1, and 2—0. Beaten once by the local champions, Trade, the team lost a heartbreaker in their second fray when, with Classical in the lead by one point, the Beavers scored in the final minutes and clinched the game with an overtime goal. In the series with Commerce the Classicalites showed their steady improvement. Trowned in their first meeting by Commerce 6—2, they came back to defeat the Raiders 2—1 in the final game of the season.

The soccer team accomplished the unusual feat of scoring four goals in six minutes against the Springfield College Frosh but were held to a 4—4 tie, were beaten by West Springfield and by Wilbraham Academy.

The veteran Tommy Howarth alone accounted for eight goals to lead the scorers. Goalie, Bob Calhoun, Bill Orr, "Red" Faulkner, and Ernest Hanford were also outstanding.
